

DIVORCE RAMPANT THROUGHOUT LAND, SAYS BISHOP HAYES

Spirit of Evil Permeates All American Life, He Tells Catholic Guild.

Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes of the Catholic diocese of New York, in an address last night in the Hotel Commodore before the members of the Catholic Writers' Guild, at a reception where he was the guest of honor, declared that the spirit of divorce "is rampant in the land."

"It not only applies to that awful thing of separation of man and wife, but when it does get into the home," said the Archbishop, "it will get into other things. You see divorce of child from parent, childbearing from women, God from government, religion from education, morality from business life, religion from profession, and all that religion means as a great preservative in every walk of life."

The Archbishop advised members of the guild to use their pens to give every one "a fair American chance." "Something must be done," he said, "to keep America on the old path and in the spirit of the men of '76, the spirit of those who wrote the Constitution and signed the Declaration of Independence. We seem to be losing their spirit. I say this advisedly. It is the duty of America to serve its own citizens first and then humanity throughout the world."

DEBT COMMISSION STILL CANNOT AGREE

PARIS, Nov. 14 (Associated Press).—The Reparation Commission has, after three hours of discussion of the situation of Germany, financially and economically, as viewed during its recent visit to Berlin, found itself just as far from agreement as when the session began. The American unofficial representatives, Roland W. Boyden and Col. James A. Logan Jr., participated in the session.

39 BARRELS OF WINE, THREE CARS OF GRAPES SEIZED AFTER $ O S CALL

Hole in Pavement Must Be Cut Before to Remove Containers
When Full.

Indications in the neighborhood of 65th Street and Second Avenue are for continued dry weather following a recent wet spell. A Prohibition agent claims he obtained a drink of wine in the private house at No. 233 East 65th Street Sunday night. A search warrant was served this morning. In the cellar were thirty-nine barrels of wine, a wine press and three cars loads of Delaware grapes, all said to be the property of George Oestreich, who owns and occupies the property, according to the Prohibition agents.

When they were empty, it is said, the barrels could be taken down the coal hole in the pavement. Filled they cannot be taken out that way and it will be necessary to cut a larger hole in the sidewalk. The value of the stuff seized is placed at $5,000. A summons was given to Oestreich. In order to get in, prohibition agents say, it was necessary to give three quick short rings, three longer ones, and three short ones, on the bell, which in the code is 8 O S.

"IDEAL" BRIDE SETS DATE OF WEDDING WITH ELMAN AHEAD 6 MONTHS

They will go abroad next May. These concerts, it was said when the engagement was announced a month ago, would delay the wedding until June

HUNTER SAFE AT HOME AS POSSE BEATS WOODS

Thought to Have Been Lost When Separated From Companion.

While a posse of farmers was beating the woods about Scotch Mountain, near Belvidere, N. J., in search of Daniel Conklin, who became separated from A. J. Lapp with whom he had been hunting for several days, Conklin was safe in his home at Bloomfield, it developed here to-day. Lapp and Conklin established headquarters in a farm house near the mountain last Thursday and succeeded in shooting much game. Saturday they became separated deep in the woods and when Lapp returned to the farm house Conklin was nowhere to be found. Lapp, alarmed, organized a posse of farmers who scoured the woods for two days unsuccessfully. A telegraphic inquiry at Conklin's home revealed that Conklin had left for Bloomfield when he and Lapp parted.

Smartest Caracul Coats

Are Brown, Tan, Grey or Black

THE richness of fur and the softness of silk are combined in these coats of caracul that are such undisputed favorites in the winter's fur fashion. The possible problem of too great a sombreness in an all-black wrap has been amply solved in the design of these coats by supplying happy contrasts in collars and cuffs of other fur. Their warmth is quite miraculous in consideration of the flexibility and lightness of weight of the caracul pelts. For those to whom additional inches in length might be of importance, there is a possible choice.
